

Trainee Mentorship Program

Short Description:

The program is designed to help trainees who are thinking of becoming the first authors in an abstract submitted for the IAP 2024 Congress, and guidance will be provided throughout the abstract preparation stages before its submission. The offered assistance includes help with English grammar and syntax, structuring the abstract, or even discussing improvement of the abstract so that it has a higher rate of being accepted. Trainees need to have permission from their program director to submit the abstract to this program.

Participation in this program does not ensure acceptance of the abstract for presentation in the meeting.

The Committee reviewing the applications will decide which submissions they will work with. Those who will not be considered will be notified by the 16th of April 2024

Who can benefit?

The program is thought and designed for trainees from the Low- and Middle- Income Countries.

*The country list will be based on the most up to date World Bank List of Economies
